

Source:

The entry of the company into several overseas markets has enabled the expansion and better utilization of the workforce with a resulting increase in output.

Paraphrase:

The company has entered several overseas markets, allowing improved use of the growing workforce with increased productivity.

2. Alternating Active & Passive Verbs.

Source:

The level of motivation that exists in assembly line workers is very low compared with other jobs.

Paraphrase:

Very low motivation is found in assembly line workers compared with other jobs.

3. Using Synonyms (without radical change to the original sentence structure)

Source:

Money earned by company employees in Western countries is generally much higher than in non-Western countries, but this is nothing to do with the employees' knowledge and skills.

Paraphrase:

The income of the workforce in developed countries is generally much higher than in undeveloped or developing countries, but this has nothing to do with job expertise.